KANG TABLE WITH RIDGED LEGS

$880

China • Collection #CMK109

W: 19.0" D: 14.0" H: 10.0"

This 19th-century hardwood kang table was traditionally used as a convenient working surface for painting, writing, sewing, or eating atop a heated kang platform. The petite table features a rectangular floating-panel top, straight legs and a simple apron decorated with brass inlay of trailing vines. The legs and sides are uniquely decorated with ridged detailing meant to mimic the stacked construction of bamboo furniture, a motif sometimes referred to as "incense stick bundles." The short corner legs end in hoof feet carved with cloud-form square spiral designs. Continued...
