CAMPHOR DISPLAY STAND

$380

c. 1900 • Shanxi, China • Camphor • Collection #BJH008

W: 11.75" D: 5.0" H: 5.5"

Dated to the early 20th century, this fantastic tabletop display stand is crafted from the cross-section of a camphor tree trunk. Shaped by the elements, the wood has eroded with time to create a highly textured surface of peaks and valleys along the growth rings. Like a scholar's rock, the small pedestal most likely lived in an artist's studio to inspire creativity with its spontaneous, wild beauty. Finished with a flat top, this spiky display stand is an amazing way to elevate a small sculpture or porcelain vase.
