W: 4.75" D: 4.0" H: 13.0"

Molded of earthenware, this petite sculpture is a type of centuries-old burial figurine known as míngqì. Such model figures were placed in tombs of individuals with high status to ensure a safe journey to the afterlife. Meant to depict the pleasures of daily life, common burial figures were warriors, dancers, male and female figures and animals. This míngqì is of a male attendant dressed in a flowing green gown supported by a waist tie and topped by a towering headdress. Continued...

SANCAI MINGQI SPIRIT ATTENDANT

Though some of the glaze has now weathered from age, revealing the original ceramic form, the facial features are left intact with stunning detail.
