FLORAL RELIEF JAR

$2,780

c. 1900 • Northern China, China • Ceramic • Collection #Y061

H: 21.0" Dia: 22.25"

Rendered in high relief, this ceramic jar's dimensional bands, hobnail motifs and flower-filled medallions add visual interest and texture. Glazed on the interior, the jar was likely originally used for food storage and, given its decorative motif of chrysanthemums, a symbol of longevity, it may have been designated for pickling eggs, tofu or vegetables.

The base of this vessel has been drilled to allow for drainage.
