PROVINCIAL GLAZED KITCHEN JAR

$580

c. 1900 • Shanxi, China • Terra Cotta, Glaze • Collection #TLB155Z

H: 12.0" Dia: 11.0"

As evidenced by the interior glaze, this wide-mouth jar was once used in a provincial Qing-dynasty kitchen for storing food and condiments. The large vessel has a gently tapered form, with rounded shoulders, small strap handles and a short, straight neck. A lustrous brown glaze cloaks the jar's upper half and catches the light with a soft sheen.

The lower half is darkened by a contrasting glaze with dark brown color and a matte, textured finish.
