GLAZED PICKLING POT

$1,280

c. 1900 • Tianjin, China • Materials, Ceramic • Collection #BJGG058

H: 17.75" Dia: 13.0"

Originally used for pickling foods, this early 20th century ceramic jar is coated inside and out with a warm grey glaze. Decorative ridges patterning the jar's high shoulders manipulate the glaze to pool irregularly across the surface. The jar is topped by a rounded lip and marked on either side by indentations functioning as handles. Speckled with imperfections and color variations, this glazed pot exemplifies the timeless appeal of handcrafted pottery.
