SQUARE BAMBOO BIRDCAGE WITH PORCELAIN WATERPOTS

$880

c. 1850 • China • Bamboo, Porcelain, Metal • Collection #CFC449

W: 10.5" D: 9.25" H: 19.5"

This delicate wooden birdcage was once home to the tiny pet bird of a Qing-dynasty aristocrat. Dated to the mid-19th century, the square cage is precisely assembled from thin bamboo rods and has a removable base, a large metal hook, and a sliding opening on one side. A wooden perch runs through the middle of the cage, textured with sand and held in place by two carved wooden charms.

Five petite cups for holding water and birdseed are affixed to the sides of the cage, three decorated in the style of blue-and-white underglaze and two in the style famille rose enamelware. Continued...

SQUARE BAMBOO BIRDCAGE WITH PORCELAIN WATERPOTS

The cage is further decorated with protective charms of carved ivory, jade, and agate. A fantastic collector's item, we love this petite birdcage as a storied sculptural object or the new home for a feathered friend.🐦
