TIBETAN SINGING BOWL

$388

c. 1850 • Tibet • Alloy • Collection #CJKA024

H: 3.5" Dia: 7.75"

Dated to the mid-19th century, this singing bowl was traditionally used for meditation. It is hand-formed from eight mixed metals including copper, tin, iron, lead, zinc, gold, silver and mercury. The eight metal alloy together produces a deep, rich sound when a wooden stick circulates around the rim of the bowl. Buddhist monks incorporate this sound into healing meditation practices. We enjoy using it in a simple and modern way for fruit, nuts or sweets.
